GEORGIA SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY

Georgia Southern University impacts the future by fostering a transformative learner-centered culture. We empower students, faculty, staff, and alumni to lead, serve, and engage, enhancing the quality of life through educational excellence, impactful research, cultural enrichment, and meaningful contributions to communities locally and globally.

THE GRETSCH SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The Fred and Dinah Gretsch School of Music is a division of Georgia Southern University's College of Arts and Humanities. While the Music Department at Georgia Southern has a long-standing tradition, the Gretsch School of Music was officially established in February 2021 following a historic gift and partnership with the Gretsch family and has recently celebrated its five-year anniversary. The School of Music offers both undergraduate and graduate degrees across the Statesboro and Armstrong (Savannah) campuses, with programs in Music Education, Music Performance, Music Composition and Theory, Music Technology, and Music Industry.

BANDS AT GEORGIA SOUTHERN

The Band Program in the Fred and Dinah Gretsch School of Music seeks to foster an atmosphere that captivates and motivates students to aspire to the highest levels of musical and personal achievement and excellence, while instilling a desire for lifelong music-making. We believe in the value of collaboration among student peers, between faculty and students, and with guest artists, including soloists, composers, and conductors. Bands at Georgia Southern are part of a comprehensive program comprised of concert ensembles (Symphonic Wind Ensemble, Wind Symphony, and University Band), Jazz Ensemble, and Athletic Bands (Southern Pride Marching Band, Hoop Troop Basketball Band, and Net Squad Volleyball Band). Participants in the Georgia Southern Bands represent a wide variety of academic majors, and we believe there is a place for everyone in band. Georgia Southern Bands have traveled to England, Ireland, Austria, Hungary, Italy, Germany, and the Czech Republic. The Band Area is also expanding to include a summer Master of Music in Wind Band Conducting at the university's campus in Wexford, Ireland.
